

Using Outside Sources

Body Paragraph

Another common reason for going to university is that college education often leads to a better career in the future. In many countries, people with university degrees tend to find better paying jobs than those without them. Companies usually offer higher salaries and better positions to university graduates. In addition, some universities provide students with opportunities to gain practical skills that can be useful in the real world. In short, some people attend university because they believe that a university degree will get them a better job in the future.

Information from your outside sources:

- (A) High school graduates can expect to earn about $30 400 per year while university graduates can get as much as $52 200 per year (U.S. Census Bureau, 2014, p. 3).
- (B) For example, Boston University offers a variety of business internship programs not only in the United States but also abroad in which students can get on the job training in management, advertising and public relations (Boston University, 2011, para. 5).

Where should you place this information in your body paragraph?

Body Paragraph with In-text Citation:

Another common reason for going to university is that college education often leads to a better career in the future. In many countries, people with university degrees tend to find better paying jobs than those without them. Companies usually offer higher salaries and better positions to university graduates. High school graduates can expect to earn about $30 400 per year while university graduates can get as much as $52 200 per year (U.S. Census Bureau, 2014, p. 3). In addition, some universities provide students with opportunities to gain practical skills that can be useful in the real world. For example, Boston University offers a variety of business internship programs not only in the United States but also abroad in which students can get on the job training in management, advertising and public relations (Boston University, 2011, para. 5). In short, some people attend university because they believe that a university degree will get them a better job in the future.

- 1. Underline the two paraphrases.
- 2. Circle the in-text citations.
- 3. For the first citation, where is the information from?
When was the source published? Which page number can you find this information?
- 4. For the second citation, where is the information from?
What was this source published? How do you know this is from the internet?

